Hi there,

Having had time to allow council meeting and Chalet Hamlet- Everwind meeting to sink in, I want to share my opinion. After obtaining a better map then what was shown in council I would question the secondary egress route. It would depend on the what and the where. Considering Everwind is their own increased fire threat, Armstrong Lake East Road is their egress route.

Note: 1 in 1700 - 2000 windmills catch fire. After watching numerous videos and scanning photos, I never saw windmills in forested areas.

6 to 7 part time positions. Construction jobs for who? All the other windmill companies brought crews in from out of province.

For me the final equation comes down to dollars and sense.

Our government thinks it is acceptable that for 840,000 dollars that the people of this community can face: Increased threat of uranium and well poisonings; increased threat of fire; allow potential blasting damages to homes, cottages, camps; increase noise; increase traffic; destroy miles of land and wetland; create havoc on the environment. 840,000 for the next twenty five years.

This is not Deja vu for me, it's tres vu, first it was oil rigs, then sable offshore gas, now our own wind as a commodity. We, Nova Scotians and Newfoundlanders have gained very little. The winners in this are the private owners, comprised of American and German companies, as well as layers of wealth management. Same ol, same ol.

This company has divided our community: say no, don't know, don't care ("They" are gonna do what they want) and what is in it for me. Joni Mitchell now sings in my head "Sell paradise put in a pickleball court".

I do not know if you have a team of lawyers, but after all the research I have done on this company and it's partners, be aware of loopholes.

I thank you all for what you do, I know it must be difficult at times. Wishing you well.

Sincerely
Karen Wallace
